Ancient Building Techniques in Modern Construction

Lecture

Thursday, March 20th

7 pm

Lovatt Community Room

By now you've probably noticed the library's new construction and have heard a little about rammed earth walls. Whether you're curious about what's going on over at the library's construction site or are looking for ideas for making your own home construction projects more "green", you won't want to miss this lecture.

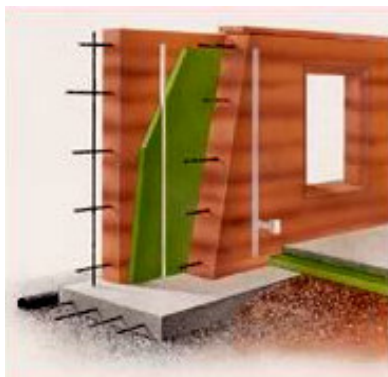

Meror Krayendall of Sirewall Inc., the award-winning firm responsible for constructing the library's new rammed earth walls, will be giving a lecture about rammed earth and its numerous qualities. While a simple idea—compacted damp earth forming walls—rammed earth walls are remarkably strong and last for several lifetimes.

Mr. Krayendall's lecture will detail the specialized Sirewall technique of creating rammed earth walls for modern uses and will outline numerous benefits of rammed earth building that are applicable to your own home building projects:

- Energy efficiency through heat retention and insulation
- Maximum protection against wind, fire and earthquakes
- Healthier indoor environments and greater air quality
- Use of locally sourced and ecologically responsible materials
- Maintenance-free, customized design for your own needs

There will be a brief question and answer session following the lecture.

The library is very pleased to offer this lecture. Meror Krayendall is not only an environmental builder with over 30 years of experience, he is a respected pioneer in the industry. The Sirewall team has more experience leading insulated rammed earth crews than all other related builders combined. Meror Krayendall is the only builder to offer accredited courses in using his revolutionized system of rammed earth building and has introduced over 150 other builders and architects to the Sirewall system of rammed earth construction.

Don't miss this exciting learning opportunity!

Construction Update: Weather Proving a Challenge

These harsh winter months have not only brought impressive snowfall and made traveling difficult at times, they have hampered construction of the new wing of the library. But, progress is slowly being made on the main east and inside walls. Once these load-bearing are complete, then construction of inner walls and floors can get underway!

Molds support the construction of the library's new rammed earth walls.

Insulation is sandwiched between the inside and outside walls.

Color is Better

The library is now offering full color digital copying and print outs for your convenience. All of the public computers can now print in color. Print and copy photos, spice up flyers and homework, and add a touch of pizzazz to ordinary documents. The charge is $1.50 per page. Ask a librarian for help.

It's Tax Time Again

Don't forget that the library has all the 2007 tax forms and booklets. Library staff can point you in the right direction but cannot advise you or interpret forms, but IRS publications may help. You may also access all forms and publications online at the IRS's web site: www.irs.gov
